Evaluation of the Faculty Consultant Position

Pursuant to the 1996 document under which the faculty consultant position was created, an evaluation must be conducted before the 1998 consultant election. It is appropriate that guidelines for the evaluation process be established. Most helpful in initiating the evaluation would be a narrative prepared by the current faculty consultant describing the interactions which have resulted from the creation of the position and the manner in which the faculty view has been presented and advanced.

Following the distribution of the narrative, each of the five bodies which have been engaged with the consultant, the Board, the chancellor's office, the two Academic Senates, and the YFA, should have an opportunity to respond with their perceptions of the achievements in improved communication flowing from the actions of the faculty consultant as well as identification of any modifications to the process deemed to be of potential value.

When each body has reviewed the documents thus produced, representatives should meet to determine whether modifications to the agreement are in order and to each consensus on implementation.

Assuming that an acceptable document has been prepared, a time line for the 1998 election of a consultant can be established and published.
