FALL 2017 MURAL PROPOSAL

Each semester students sign up for the mural painting class in hopes to bring life and color to the walls of the campus through art. Our goal as a group is to create an inspirational, vibrant, 8' by 8' mural that will hang on the wall of the first stair case in Founders Hall. We would like to incorporate the subjects that are taught within that building like creative writing, literature, and English among other subjects. We are geared towards a surrealistic image that incorporates various elements and styles reflecting the world that literature can create. We plan to paint a tree as the focal point, but it will turn into a rendering of the stair case, matching the ones in the hallway, in hopes that an optical illusion will present the idea that the stair case continues wrapping around the tree in a fantasy like manner. We want to make it look like the walls are cracked exposing different settings and time periods, perhaps honoring some famous authors and speakers. We plan to use the middle ground, foreground, and background to create the appearance of layers, peeling back, or flying away showing that there are endless possibilities of worlds and knowledge to be discovered. Books are the basis of our education as college students; they are the college experience, from buying to reading them. So incorporating books stacked on top of each other in a bookcase, some with roots coming out of them growing in and from the earth, the importance of books as a tool for growth and expansion is made clear. We want to emphasize the idea that books can open doors to new worlds, whether they are used for enjoyment or education. We could not help but notice all the traffic in this area of Founders hall. The building itself is lacking energy and decoration, -yet is one of the most heavily used. With this mural we will deliver meaningful art, but also something that can remind students that choosing to attend college is like planting a seed that can flourish and create a beautiful world through learning and growing. Upon approval we will develop a Marquette and a formal proposal laying out our exact plan for the piece.
